Hello PostHog Team,

I'm applying for the Product Engineer role. PostHog's way of working (engineers own the product, talk to users, and take their turn on support) is how I've worked as a founder.

This year at Coordinator I built AI-native product end to end: Go agent tools with exact contracts that a model used to write and edit workspace apps, a tiered agent runtime I tuned by timing real requests, and production voice messaging. Before that I founded Ralli and built the product on Next.js and NestJS/Postgres. At Applied Intuition I built a usage analytics dashboard that helped close multiple million dollar deals, and a Zendesk automation that cut support response time from over a day to under an hour.

To be direct about a gap: I haven't worked with big-data systems like ClickHouse in production.

I'd be glad to talk about the role.
